Primeiro-ministro chinês Li Qiang destaca importância de aumentar consistência de orientação macropolítica

O primeiro-ministro chinês, Li Qiang, enfatizou a importância de aumentar a consistência da orientação macropolítica e criar grande sinergia para promover o desenvolvimento de alta qualidade.

Li fez essas observações cashback betsul uma sessão de estudo realizada pelo Conselho de Estado.

Governança macroeconômica e políticas

Observando que a governança macroeconômica é mais complexa no momento, Li disse que esforços devem ser feitos para otimizar a combinação de recursos e ferramentas políticos com pensamento e medidas sistemáticos, para melhorar a eficácia das políticas.

As metas das políticas devem ser confirmadas após considerar as necessidades gerais de desenvolvimento econômico e social, disse Li.

Enquanto a economia enfrenta uma pressão descendente relativamente elevada, as políticas conducentes à estabilização do crescimento e das expectativas devem ser implementadas de forma mais proativa e as medidas contracionistas e inibitivas devem ser introduzidas com prudência, afirmou.

A análise e a avaliação das políticas devem ser aperfeiçoadas, disse Li, acrescentando que normas devem ser estabelecidas de forma judiciosa.

Políticas não econômicas e avaliação

Li observou que as políticas não econômicas devem ser incluídas na avaliação da coerência da política macroeconômica e que o efeito das novas políticas deve ser avaliado numa perspectiva que inclua o desenvolvimento econômico, a estabilização das expectativas, o emprego e os meios de subsistência das pessoas.

Huang Hanquan, chefe da Academia Chinesa de Pesquisa Macroeconômica, deu uma palestra na sessão. O vice-primeiro-ministro Ding Xuexiang, o vice-primeiro-ministro Zhang Guoqing e o conselheiro de Estado Wang Xiaohong participaram das discussões.
